A-pdf Restrictions Remover Crack 1.7.0

Archives [1]: [2]: [3]: [4]: Q: Asp.net Core redirect to HTTPS without controller or parameter I have a web app which I am converting to use Asp.net Core. The issue I have is that I am using a third party library that generates a PDF, however this third party library does not support HTTPS for it's API's. It does however offer an alternative that will generate the PDF to a web storage location. I have updated my web.config to redirect to this location: However, the third party library will not accept this URL. If I use I get a message from the third party library that the URL is incorrect. Is there any way I can add a parameter to the end of my URL to force it to accept HTTPS? My controller looks something like this (there is more code but not relevant to this) [HttpGet] public IActionResult GetPDFS([FromQuery] string someParam) What I want to do is something like: [HttpGet] public IActionResult GetPDFS([FromQuery] string someParam, string ssl) I am using this to force all URLs to be HTTPS A: I have found that the IIS Rewrite module in IIS will do what I want.
